

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A mobile communication system is provided with a system for frequency correction in a reception apparatus which has a first control system, device or loop for detecting a frequency discrepancy in received signals and for appropriate correction of the frequency supplied to a mixer stage, and a second control system, device or loop for detecting a frequency discrepancy in received signals and for subsequent computerized correction thereof on the basis of the CORDIC algorithm.